Fenway Park, Boston, Oct. 15.—The New York Giants finally got next to the slants of Joe Wood and hammered out enough runs in the first inning to win the seventh game of the world's series. Wood was taken from the box and Hall put in. The slugging New Yorkers touched Hall at will.

Tesreau, after being knocked from the box by the Red Sox in two previous games, had Stahl's men at his mercy in the tight places.

The Giants and Red Sox are now tied, with three games each. Tomorrow's game at New York, if not a tie, will decide the winner of the world's championship.
